

ABSTRACT

[0048] A variable length coding method is provided. The method comprises comparing corresponding portions of a present picture and a previous picture received by a video encoder; and performing coding by fixing a COD (coded macroblock indication) flag of the present picture at a certain value, if said corresponding portions are similar to each other.